zusammenfassung japan india relations have traversed from distantly friendly to indispensable partners the significant development of the india japan strategic partnership the convergence of bilateral strategies and the addressing of broader economic relations and cultural dimensions signify that bilateral relations have entered a new era in japan india relations given the region s emerging geopolitics diplomatic relations between these two nations have gained momentum beyond the traditional pillars of engagement new dimensions namely human security environment disaster risk reduction climate change issues innovation and resilience building have gained currency addressing these this book covers the broader aspects of human security dimensions of india japan collaboration involving multi and trans disciplinary research including in depth reviews and new data based on case studies from india and japan this book sheds light on new convergence frontiers between these two nations furthermore the book suggests specific policy and action measures to enhance human security through the bilateral cooperation between india and japan which has a global impact the emerging strategic relationship between india and japan is significant for the future security and stability of the indo asia pacific region it is also a critical emergent relationship for u s security objectives across the asia pacific india possesses the most latent economic and military potential of any state in the wider asia pacific region therefore india is the state with the greatest potential outside of the united states itself to contribute to the objectives of the rebalance to the pacific announced by washington in 2011 this rebalance was aimed at fostering a stable prosperous and rules based region where peace prosperity and wide respect for human rights are observed and extended implicit in the rebalance was a hedge against a china acting to challenge the existing post world war ii rules based international and regional order india and japan share complementary but not identical strategic visions both seek to manage and minimize the potential negative impacts from the rise of china in accord with their own strategic perspectives as of early 2017 japan perceives china s growing assertive actions to be a great and rising strategic threat india is concerned about china s increasingly worrisome behavior but finds itself relatively more dependent upon china for economic growth and less worried about its immediate physical threat than japan as a result india has been and will continue to be less vocal in complaints about chinese behavior preferring to warn beijing with subtle signaling and actions there is broad bipartisan domestic support in japan and india for enhancing bilateral strategic cooperation now and moving forward prime minister shinzo abe s role has been a critical factor in the rapid growth of the strategic relationship and the partnership is unlikely to have moved as far or as fast without his leadership however japan s important relationship with india has been institutionalized in special ways over the past decade that will make it durable if not as dynamic when abe leaves the political stage in japan the same is largely true in india since mid 2014 prime minister narendra modi s personal approach and his special relationship with abe have been a significant accelerant to the india japan strategic relationship indian strategic thinking is broadly supportive of continuing to grow strategic bilateral relations with tokyo there is a depth of support in both countries that will foster a robust strategic relationship well into the future japan provides india with economic political and diplomatic interactions that it cannot replicate elsewhere japanese economic assistance is special in that it can undertake projects of enormous scope and scale in the indian economy offering a competitive and often preferred alternative to chinese bids on critical indian infrastructure projects as a technologically advanced industrial nation with an established defense industry and one now enabled to export weapons platforms and technologies abroad due to a historic political evolution japan can help india advance its national military and defense capabilities india provides japan with a security partner of enormous latent potential and three main short term advantages india s border dispute with china causes beijing to spend more on defense along the indian border limiting its attention and defense spending against contested island claims astride japan growing indian maritime capability will enable new delhi to assume greater responsibility for indian ocean security allowing japan and the united states to allocate a greater proportion of their own resources to counter chinese adventurism in the south and east china seas finally india has the potential to assist vietnam to develop as a japanese security partner in southeast asia as both india and vietnam currently have many of the same russian military platforms
