the movement that created the identity of the universal intellectual erasmian humanism focusing on the writings of erasmus and thomas more hanan yoran argues that in contrast to other groups of humanists erasmus and the circle gathered around him generated the social space the erasmian republic of letters that allowed them a considerable measure of independence the identity of the autonomous intellectual enabled the erasmian humanists to criticize established customs and institutions and to elaborate a reform program for christendom at the same time however the very notion of the universal intellectual presented a problem for the discourse of erasmian humanism itself it distanced the erasmian humanists from concrete public activity and as such clashed with their commitment to the ideal of an active life furthermore citizenship in the republic of letters threatened to lock the erasmian humanists into a disembodied intellectual sphere thus undermining their convictions concerning intellectual activity and the production of knowledge between utopia and dystopia will be of interest to scholars and students interested in renaissance humanism early modern intellectual and cultural history and political thought it also has much to contribute to debates over the identity social place and historical role of intellectuals
