with artistic research becoming an established paradigm in art education several questions arise how do we train young artists and designers to actively engage in the production of knowledge and aesthetic experiences in an expanded field how do we best prepare students for their own artistic research what comprises a curriculum that accommodates a changed learning making and research landscape and what is the difference between teaching art and teaching artistic research what are the specific skills and competences a teacher should have inspired by a symposium at the university of applied arts vienna in 2018 this book presents a diversity of well reasoned answers to these questions the role of arts and cultural institutions is changing once viewed as stewards of objects institutions are increasingly upheld as stewards of people spaces where the diversity of human experience is asserted explored and celebrated as such they function as public resources and should be equally accessible to all members of diverse communities individuals with autism spectrum disorder account for a significant portion of the community advocates are working to shift attitudes and nomenclature with terms such as neurodiversity and sensory friendly becoming more commonplace with this cultural institutions are putting effort into creating tailored programs and resources to welcome neurodiverse visitors who have historically been excluded from these spaces despite their desire to connect many cultural workers fear they lack the expertise or resources needed to effectively create inclusive spaces and experiences this book s content is presented by museum educators arts administrators occupational therapists and school psychologists contributors with different expertise and perspectives on the stakes of cultural arts experiences for neurodiverse visitors we offer advice based on what has worked for us and share the sometimes difficult lessons learned along the way however this advice comes with the caution there is no one size fits all solution to be truly successful arts and cultural institutions must respond to their unique community and work within the resources and limitations of their institution our practical goals for the reader are threefold to understand the value of programming for neurodiverse visitors and effectively communicate this to others to build a toolkit of strategies and resources for neurodiverse visitors to have successful visits to cultural institutions no matter the staff size budget or current stages of accessibility to develop evaluation strategies to gauge the impact of offerings for neurodiverse visitors with results that help the reader improve grow and refine for the future the promotion of health in universities is of great importance as it allows for the encouragement of healthy lifestyles and the prevention of diseases among students teaching staff and administrative personnel the university is a conducive environment for the promotion of healthy habits since firstly it is usually the moment when the students make decisions under their responsibility and secondly it is a place where academic sports and social activities take place so it is also an ideal moment to promote changes that can be transferred to society and the rest of the individual's life health promotion in universities can cover several areas such as healthy eating physical exercise prevention of addictions emotional and social mental health among others it can also involve the entire university community from students to administrative and teaching staff in the case of students it is essential as it is a period of change and habit formation and the fact that they will be the future decision makers of society the queer biopic in the aids era offers a new account of the aids crisis and the emergence of new queer cinema author laura stamm asks why queer filmmakers repeatedly produced biographical films of queer individuals living and dead throughout the years surrounding the aids crisis queer filmmakers' engagement with the biopic evokes the genre's history of building life through the portrayal of lives worthy of admiration and emulation but it also points to another biopic history that of representing lives damaged by portraying lives damaged by inconceivable loss queer filmmakers challenge the illusion of a coherent self presumably reinforced by the biopic genre and in doing so their films open the potential for new means of connection and relationality the queer biopic in the aids era features fresh readings of the cinema of derek jarman john greyson todd haynes barbara hammer and tom kalin by calling for a reappraisal of the queer biopic this book also calls for a reappraisal of new queer cinema's legacy and its influence of contemporary queer film as a whole this book pays particular attention to the biopic's queer resonances opening up its historical connections to projects of education public health and social hygiene along with the production of a shared history and national identity
